Summer Was Busy For Students

Charles G. May Center students, under the guidance of instructor Jon English, have participated in numerous contests and fairs throughout Western New York this summer.

Vocational displays developed by Howard Luther of Caledonia and Vern Finch of York received blue ribbons and awards at both the Hemlock and Caledonia fairs. of Arthur N. Farrell by his In competition at the Wyoming County Fair, the displays placed and "Gardens of the Gilded Age" second and third. by Christine Doell given in Animals raised by the students at the May Center were shown at the Caledonia Fair. The holstein senior yearling heifer, shown by Phil Kappessor of Wayland, received a blue ribbon in the 4-H show and placed third in the county Black and White Show. Jennie Guiles of Perry led the senior Jersey calf and received a blue ribbon for her efforts. The market steer shown by Mark Webber of Wayland was grand champion steer at Caledonia.

In early August, five agriculture students participated in a dairy judging tour sponsored by Alfred State College in Cattaraugus County. Jeff Finch and Rob Parnell of York, Jennie Guiles of Perry, Greg Gleason of Avon and Phil Kappessor of Wayland, held thier own in strong competition.

Sub-district Future Farmers of America contests were held at the Wyoming County Fair to determine eligibility for State Fair competition. In dairy judging for the May team, Rob Parnell of York, placed fourth and Jennie Guiles of Perry, sixth. Other participants were Holly Ewert of Wayland and Chris Wester of Dansville. In judging livestock, May Center students were very successful. Mark Webber, of Wayland, placed first, Chuck Gates, of York, placed third, Holly Ewert of Wayland, placed fourth and Jeff Finch of York placed fifth. Mark and Holly, selected to represent the sub-district at the State Fair in FFA livestock judging competition, fine-tuned their judging techniques at the Steuben County Fair in Bath. Webber received third in overall judging. Participating in these events builds upon the foundation laid during the school year to build up the student's confidence in their working knowledge, English said. "It is gratifying for the Center to see them perform so well," he ad-

Unit Has Guide To Fall Colors

Although September brings Penn Yan, 14527. down the curtain on summer, it also ushers in harvest time and the fall foliage season. This is the and vegetable roadside stands time when the Finger Lakes Region turns into a panorama of and the various farmers' markets beautiful red, gold and orange and the air is perfumed with the aroma of grapes.

So that visitors can best enjoy the colorful autumn show, the Lakes Association publishes a fall brochure which lists the most scenic routes, along with information on hunting in the 14 counties of the region. This is available free by sending a post their craft through tours and tascard to the Finger Lakes Associa- tings with many thousands of tion, Dept. FL99, 309 Lake St,. visitors each year.

Other attractions of the fall season are the numberous fruit which dot the hills and valleys which are open weekends throughout the area with their bountious supply of fruits and vegetables.

The annual harvest and crush of grapes at area wineries is now in full swing at more than 40 area wineries which produce some of the world's finest wines. Finger Lakes winemakers willingly share
